NJH 2024 Research Retreat – Brian Day, PhD

Please join us for the 2024 NJH Research Retreat, Friday, March 8, 2024. It'll take place in the Molly Blank Conference Center from 1:30pm – 4:30pm. The two winning abstracts will be presented along with each Department Chair highlighting current research in their areas. Congratulations to this year's abstract winners - Caleb Gammon (Peds) and Dr. Alexandra McCubbrey (DOM)! We're looking forward to your presentations!

New Grant Opportunity through the RAC and ORI – Elizabeth Redente, PhD

We are pleased to announce an internal funding opportunity made possible by a generous donation to National Jewish Health through Windsweep Farm. The Research Advisory Committee (RAC) through the Office of Research Innovation will be sponsoring a 1-year investigator-initiated research grant for $45,000.

The intent of the award is to study The Role of T and Innate Lymphoid Cells in Oral Mucosal Immunity. This is an initiative to engage investigators to enter the field of mucosal immunity research.

For this opportunity, applicants should be a postdoctoral fellow, graduate Student or laboratory Scientist working on this topic. Applications are due to LeAnn Donahue by March 11, 2024. Awards will be announced at the end of March with funding to begin April 1.

Please contact LeAnn Donahue for the application requirements and further award details. Please direct questions to Elizabeth Redente.

We look forward to reviewing each application and seeing the fantastic science and innovative ideas from our research community.

Collaborative Frontiers: Uniting Mount Sinai Hospital, National Jewish Health and Jefferson Clinical Research Institute for Research Excellence – Anthony Gerber, MD, PhD

On Tuesday, April 2nd, 2024, from 9am – 12pm (MST), National Jewish, Mount Sinai Hospital and the Jefferson Clinical Research Institute for Research Excellence will host a virtual research symposium. Room J104 on the NJH campus is reserved for the symposium and faculty are encouraged to attend. The agenda and further details available soon.
